professor, with a demonstrated record of strength in teaching, doctoral advising, scholarship, and service to support the Program's scholarly, professional, and academic initiatives. The successful candidate will serve a nine-month, tenure-track appointment beginning with the Fall semester of 2023. Salary will be commensurate with experience. Part-time summer teaching is contingent on student demand and funding. An offer of employment for this position will be made dependent upon available funding.

Primary responsibilities include:

- pursuing a focused line of research leading to publications in top tier venues and to extramural funding,
- teaching two (2) Higher Education courses each semester,
- serving as a chair or member on doctoral committees and advising/mentoring students,
- working with Program faculty members and with centers and institutes affiliated with the Program to maintain and enhance the Program's stature, and
- participating actively in service to the Program, the University, and professional organizations.

Minimum Qualifications

- The candidate must hold a doctorate in the field of Higher Education or a closely related field.
- A record of effective research, publication, and external funding is expected.
- Candidates must have a demonstrated commitment to diversity, equity, inclusion, and social justice as evidenced by their teaching, research, and service to the profession.

Preferred Qualifications

- Experienced candidates are expected to have an established research agenda, a demonstrated record of high-impact scholarly publications in the field of higher education, and experience in teaching in face to face, interactive video and online modalities, and experience in doctoral advising.
- A research record concerning Latinx, Black/African American, and other minoritized communities is preferred.
- The ideal candidate is a scholar with expertise in community colleges, student success and access, particularly for minoritized students.
- Potential for higher education program leadership is preferred.
