research tools of data science and learning analytics. More specifically, we are looking for a scholar whose research and teaching addresses ways to improve educational access, transition and success, learning opportunities, and policy interventions.

Therefore, we seek a colleague whose research will contribute to the GSE in the following areas of education research: (1) educational data mining; (2) educational big data analysis; (3) learning analytics.

Priority status will be given to scholars who use a critical lens, particularly critical quantitative methods and demonstrate innovative approaches to educational data science to improve educational equity. Ideal candidates are able to make clear connections between their research, teaching, and service, and the needs of marginalized and underserved populations.

GSE is committed to fostering the principles of equity, diversity, justice, and inclusion through an engaged community of scholars who prioritize research, teaching, and community action that address educational, economic, social, and health disparities. The CSEP Department includes a distinguished faculty of researchers, professional teachers, and thought leaders who strive for innovation in research, training, and practice to have enduring impact on the lives of individuals and communities. Faculty demonstrate a commitment to creating a collegial academic environment characterized by equity, social justice, interdisciplinary collaboration and by ensuring that the research and practice mission of GSE contributes to local schools, agencies, and neighborhoods.

Responsibilities include:

- Conduct exemplary research, commensurate with Research 1 tenure track faculty appointments, leading to the development of innovative ideas and publications in prominent scholarly outlets.
- Pursue extramural funding for research initiatives.
- Teach two courses per semester at the graduate level.
- Advise and mentor graduate students, including chairing and serving on doctoral dissertation committees.
- Support efforts to recruit M.S. and Ph.D. students.
- Fulfill service responsibilities related to program, departmental, and university affiliations.
