The Counseling & Human Service Department at Old Dominion University invites applicants for an Assistant Professor of Counseling to begin in Spring. This is an annual, 10-month, tenure-track appointment. The primary responsibilities for this 10-month, tenure-track, renewable position are to provide teaching, research, and service-leadership in the graduate counseling program. Teaching assignments include MS Ed, Ed.S. or PhD in Counseling program courses. This position reports to the Counseling and Human Services department chair and is expected to work collaboratively with the Counseling program faculty. As a member of the graduate faculty in counseling, the candidate will be required to demonstrate professional identity as a counselor, to participate in state, regional, and national professional association activity, and to engage in professional development and scholarship in support of earning tenure at Old Dominion University.
